This transcription of the 1820 Census of Switzerland County, Indiana is dedicated to the memory of Margaret Shaver See.. Margaret Shaver was born in Kentucky around 1800-1802. We do not know for certain who her parents were, but some of her relatives believe that her parents were George and Mary Riffel Shaver (also spelled Shafer, Shaffer, and Schaeffer). Margaret Shaver was married to Jeremiah See in Switzerland County, Indiana on June 2, 1820. From the time of her marriage until her death in 1895 she lived in Florence, Indiana.

One hundred years ago Margaret See told her grandchildren a story of her own grandmother being taken captive by some Indians. This woman (whose name we do not know) escaped from the Indians during an eclipse of the moon and returned to her home in Kentucky or Indiana. As a memorial to the moon that had helped her escape she designed a quilt and called it "The Eclipse of the Moon." The quilt was made of yellow intertwining eclipsed moons against a black background. The quilt was used for many years and was badly worn when it came into the possession of Margaret See in about 1860. It had to be relined when a neighbor, Mrs. Philip Bettens, took it to Philadelphia to be exhibited in an old quilt display there. When Mrs. Bettens returned the quilt she brought with her the money for third prize and she said that if the quilt had been in better condition it would have won the first prize at the quilt exhibition.

The story of Indian captivity fascinated me as a child. I have since often wondered whether Margaret See told the story as family history or whether it was merely a fanciful tale — made up to amuse her little grandchild. Three years ago I determined to learn all that I could about the story behind the "Eclipse of the Moon" quilt. My first task was to find the name of Margaret See's mother and grandmother and to learn where they lived in Kentucky and Indiana. I am still searching for some of this information, but I do have indications that Margaret See may have been born in Montgomery County, Kentucky and that her parents lived at one time near the Licking River.

Although I have never found the quilt, I have learned that Margaret See did have a quilt which she especially prized. In 1961 Mrs. Lulu Williamson Oak wrote to me of her memory of that quilt: "I do know that Aunt Peggy had a special quilt. In the 1880s when I was about five or six years old, Aunt Peggy showed me a 'prize quilt.' One day when I was visiting her she took an old quilt out of her trunk and said, with an air of ceremony, 'Come child, let me show you my prize quilt.' And all that I can remember about the quilt is that it was dark and badly worn — in fact, I remember feeling guilty because in my mind my immediate reaction was, 'Goodness me, Aunt Peggy, that quilt doesn't look worth saving!'"

And this is all that we know about the tale of Indian captivity and the Eclipse of the Moon quilt.

I hope that some of the visitors to the Vevay-Switzerland Sesquicentennial Fair will be able to help me in my search for the incidents that gave rise to the story of the Eclipse of the Moon quilt.

If you can tell me anything more about Margaret See, the captivity of her grandmother, or the famous quilt, please do let me hear from you!

PREFACE

William C. Keen of Vevay, Indiana was the United States census-taker for Switzerland County, Indiana in 1820. He visited each household and recorded the names of the heads of the 706 families who then resided in the county. For each family he recorded the number--by age grouping--of persons in the family, the occupations of those who worked, and the [illegible]

The following abbreviations have been used in this transcription from Mr. Keen's original census return in the National Archives, Washington, D. C.:

F -- Foreign citizenship
A -- Agriculture
M -- Manufacturing
C -- Commercial

These abbreviations appear in the final columns and are used primarily to indicate the occupations followed. For example, if a name is followed by "A-2, C-1, F-2," it would mean that two persons in the family were engaged in agricultural work, that one person was engaged in commercial work, and that two persons were foreign-born and not naturalized.

The totals are recorded as they appear in Mr. Keen's report. In some cases the figures given as the "total" do not agree with the actual sum of the individual numbers listed.
